Earlier this year, I was a volunteer career coach for Future Frontiers - an education charity providing young people from disadvantaged backgrounds access to career guidance and professional networks. I'm really proud to share their impact report, which showcases the difference they make to education and employment outcomes for young people.

If you or your business is looking for a tangible and meaningful way to support young people (virtually!), I highly recommend you get in touch with them. More information here.

Did you know that parental income is the strongest indicator of how well a young person will achieve at school and the opportunities they will have in their career?

This year, the team at [X company], decided to do something about it. We participated in the Future Frontiers coaching programme which improves education and employment outcomes for young people from low-income families.

Last week, they launched their impact report which you can read here.

If your business is looking to support young people at a time of unprecedented need, give them a shout!
